PREFACE

It was under the Plan Scheme, 'Expansion of National Register of Private Records' that the Government of India had Sanctioned a State Cell to be located in one of the states to expedite the survey and listing of records in private custody. This unit was required to conduct on the spot survey and list important historical papers found in the custody of private individuals and institutions in collaboration with the State Archives. After sounding various State Archives in this behalf it was decided to locate the Cell at Bhubaneswar on an experimental basis in the first instance. The information received from the said Cell, during the period June 1979 - December 1981 constitutes the present volume which is the twelfth in the series. It contains the descriptive lists of documents found in the custody of private individuals and religious institutions in the State of Orissa.

In compiling the present volume, the pattern adopted in the case of earlier volumes has been generally followed. While preparing the descriptive lists of documents, every collection has been arranged in the chronological order. As usual dates of the documents have been retained as in the original but there are a good number of items which do not bear any date. In most of the cases, vernacular words/expressions are used. English eqivalents of such expressions have been furnished to the extent possible. It would be appreciated that in the absence of the original papers with us, it was not possible either to verify or to supplement the information furnished in this volume. However, we have adhered closely to the original and efforts have been made to identify personal and place names. In general, each document has been listed separately, but a brief writeup has also been added in the beginning of each collection giving the particulars of the owner and the main features of the collection as a whole. The volume also includes a glossary and index of the collections separately placed at the end. The major portion of the documents listed in this volume belong to the famous temple of Lord Jagannath at Puri, and the rest are in the possession of individuals. The documents are mainly in Oriya, English and Persian.

In the compilation of this volume I have received ungrudging assistance from Smt. Usha Kaul, Assistant Archivist Grade I and Shri B.D.Saxena, Archivist and Dr. T.R.Sareen, Assistant Director of Archives. I do hope that this volume will prove useful to the scholars.
